Ochre Cliffs - Aboriginal Site

Lyndhurst Roadhouse - Starting Point

Two areas to visit on your travels are the Ochre Cliffs, an important aboriginal site and the creative talc stone carvings by Talc Alf, an outback personality with his own opinions on the development of the alphabet and his own version of the Australian flag.

Lyndhurst was established in 1882 as a service area for the Old Ghan Railway which was being developed towards Marree at the time. Lyndhurst has a population of about 30 and is host to many tourists and 4wd travellers coming from the south to venture along the Strzelecki, Oodnadatta and Birdsville Tracks. In Lyndhurst there is a Shell roadhouse supplying a seven-day diesel and unleaded fuel service, food, drinks, travel supplies and souvenirs. The 'Elsewhere' hotel offers a cold drink, accommodation, camping facilities and meals. For vehicles travelling the Strzelecki Track, Lyndhurst is the last fuel opportunity before Innamincka 469 km to the north. There is no fuel or services available at Moomba.
